

To All Gardeners

From: Christine Gorman, OCG Chair

Finding the best and least harmful way to get rid of pests, or to fertilize our soil, takes a lot of research and experience. Keep in mind that even natural products can be harmful in some way if you don't know what you're doing. Take the time to understand the product before you use it.

Some of the best gardening resources I've found to date include:

A website that gives comprehensive up to date and in depth info on organic gardening, pest control, etc.
<http://www.planetnatural.com/>

Info on what's killing our bees, butterflies, birds, etc.
http://www.organicconsumers.org/articles/article_29307.cfm

An organic nursery/garden center in Solana Beach:
<http://cedrosgardens.com/>

Our local resource for free compost, mulch, worm tea, gardening classes, etc.
<http://agriserviceinc.com>

Free gardening classes are offered at several locations. A few are listed below, but you might know of others. Check the topics and schedules for classes at <http://cedrosgardens.com>
<http://agriserviceinc.com>
<http://www.armstronggarden.com/pages/classes>